Health & Safety

Implementing health and safety measures doesn't have to be expensive, time consuming or complicated; safer and more efficient working practices can often save money, but more importantly they can help to save lives and prevent injury. Detailed risk assessments are provided covering all aspects of health and safety in the workplace including managing violence at work, personal safety of staff, customers and visitors. Experienced, qualified members of staff provide both assessments and training.

Personal safety at Work - violence in the workplace has become a major issue; putting into place appropriate preventative and proactive measures as well as management arrangements is a legal requirement. An employer is also required to give employees adequate information and training to be able to understand the risks and the measures (including procedures and policies) taken to deal with them.

Speak to BillCroft & Associates Ltd about your requirements and we will carry out an initial needs analysis, providing your company with a management report.
