Contingency Planning

Managing the threat, whether from fire, flood, crime, vandalism, terrorist activity or the disruption of business by protest groups will require a detailed risk assessment which will identify risks and assess the likelihood and impact upon an organisation; working with you our specialists will produce a business continuity plan, to enable management of the crisis and ensure survival and recovery of your organisation.

The Management of Health, Safety and Welfare Regulations 1999 is specific: every employer shall establish and effect procedures to be followed in the event of serious and imminent danger. You must have a plan, be competent to implement the plan and rehearse it annually. Our specialists will take you through procedures and policies; provide your managers, co-ordinators and marshals with step-by-step instructions from initial actions on receiving or discovering the 'threat' to recognition, response, evaluation, validation, action, evacuation and search procedures.
