Security

The preparation and development of security policies to reflect an organisations needs and requirements.

The Assessment of Violence and Aggression at Work / Policy and Procedure Documentation

Providing your company with legally binding documentation which clearly states both your responsibility and that of your employees in relation to the personal safety whilst at work. These documents will take managers and staff through clearly defined routes from assessment, reporting and recording incidents, investigation, as well as the provision of guidelines for every member of staff. Having systems and procedures in place to carry out risk assessments is essential for everyone's safety, as well as being a legal requirement.

Training and Development

We offer a wide range of training programmes and consultative services addressing everything from setting up a training department, developing training programmes, and accrediting your training with national awarding bodies. Our trainers and consultants have many years of experience in subjects from personal safety and security, health and safety, special needs, business management, aromatherapy, drugs and alcohol awareness, equal opportunities, and other specialist fields.

Quality Assurance

Organisational Policies and Procedures to help your organisation meet the requirements of ISO 9000/2001
